Hardcover, 9 H x 8 W

Bre Doucette, creator of the Rooms for Rent blog, shares her passion for decorating and her belief that creating a home is so much more than the stuff we fill our rooms with. Bre lives in an 1846 farmhouse with her husband, her two kids, one dog, and twelve chickens.

HEIGHT & SILHOUETTE

I staggered the mercury glass trees down the center of the table, starting with the tallest tree in the center and then worked my way outward, so the shortest trees were on both ends. This symmetry is pleasing to the eye. The plate chargers and the greenery also add layers of different heights to the full tablescape.

CENTERPIECE

This Christmas table shines with mercury glass trees nestled in between branches of cedar, bay leaf, and seeded eucalyptus. I love recreating scenes from nature, and this centerpiece resembles the snow-covered trees around my house. Not only is this arrangement simple and stunning, the scent of this seasonal garland is heavenly.

SPECIAL TOUCHES

Each place setting is styled to resemble a Christmas present. Just like the packages underneath the tree, the napkins were adorned with shimmering champagne colored ribbon, a mini mercury glass ornament, and some sprigs of greenery. It's a simple touch, but one that tells each guest "This is just for you!"

TEXTURE

Fresh greenery placed down the center of the table creates the natural foundation for this wintry scene. The organic textures of the garland and the weathered wood table create a striking contrast with the shiny and smooth glass trees.
